

—John Olson's bronchos made a lively run last Friday. L. H. Dickinson and Otto Ragenberg were unloading some timbers near the Omaha depot, and they had just finished unloading when the team jumped, and they were thrown down in the box. When the wagon struck the sidewalk, just west of the depot, the tongue came down. Mr. Dickinson had hold of the lines, and finding that he could not stop them west. that they could not stop them turned west. In making the turn they struck the big granite hitching post in front of J. W. West's residence, and broke it in several pieces. The team ran to Mischler's corner, where one of the horses straddled the guy rod to a telephone pole, and the momentum at which they were traveling carried the animal nearly to the top of the pole. About the only damage done was to Mr. West's hitching post.

Rock Rapids Review - Rock Rapids, Iowa
28 August 1913

The Boyden Reporter (Boyden, Iowa)
Friday, 13 February 1903, page 2:

Otto Regenber and W. Sheets were at Rock Rapids, Wednesday.

The Boyden Reporter, (Boyden, Iowa):
Friday, 10 April 1903, page 3:

Otto and Edith Regenber and Mrs.
U.A. Uden were at Rock Rapids Sunday.